

24/7 Emergency Service

Because emergencies don't schedule appointments.

In an emergency, we're there when you need us – day or night – 365 days a year. Just call your local Summit service center. A knowledgeable associate will return your call promptly and get your problem solved.

Some emergencies are "ordinary."

"During the state soccer championship, the fuses of the stadium lights blew out. It was about 6 p.m. and already getting dark. I called Summit and someone met me at their Santa Fe counter so I could pick up new fuses in time to prevent the game from being interrupted."

Others make history.

Hurricane Ike went down in history as the third strongest storm of 2008 with damages exceeding $27 billion. Thousands were forced to evacuate before the storm struck Texas on Saturday, Sept. 13. On Monday, Sept. 15, Summit service centers in all four affected cities opened for business at 7 a.m.

"Thanks to some solid planning and preparation...all locations are open for business and serving customers. We have taken steps to have the post-storm materials on hand that will be needed to get the affected communities up and running as soon as possible."
